

Troubleshooting Solutions

Find the error and correct it!

The adding and subtracting of mixed numbers was this week’s topic to be mastered. To save time, I wanted to wait until class so the instructor could show me how to do it. She modeled three examples on the board, which I copied to use that night to help me as I did the 20 homework problems. I was able to do half the problems before I ran into trouble, so I went to the professor’s office hours the next day to ask her for more help. After she showed me a few more examples, I felt comfortable for the test.
